BRITISH TAKE MORE GERMAN MEN AND GUNS

Series of Counter Thrusts North of the Somme Gain Ground--German Reserves Thrown Back With Heavy Losses.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 29.—By a series of powerful counter-thrusts, delivered by the British north of the Somme river, ground was gained from the Germans and a number of German prisoners and machine guns were captured, the war office reported today.

There is a continuation of the terrific fighting over the greater part of the battle front.

Strong German reserves were thrown into the battle, but were everywhere thrown back by the determined resistance of the British.

The dense German columns were caught under the rifle, machine gun and cannon fire of the British and Field Marshal Haig reported that they again sustained tremendous losses.

South of the Somme river violent fighting raged until late Thursday evening.

After holding their battle line all day against the violent assaults of the Germans the British made a strategic withdrawal at some points from their advanced positions, the official report added.

The war office indicted that the British counter blows were growing in vigor and that the pressure of the German has greatly weakened.

"Further strong attacks were delivered by the enemy at several points north of the Somme river in the course of Thursday afternoon and last evening," the war office stated.

"Not only did the British hold all their ground but gained territory from the enemy at some places by successful counter-attacks.

"A number of prisoners and machine guns were captured in this battle in which the enemy suffered exceedingly heavy casualties.

"Frequent attacks by the Germans which were pressed with determination throughout the day only gained British outpost lines.

"The struggle was marked by severe hand to hand fighting.

"The enemy's reserves were then sent against the British positions, but were everywhere thrown back, suffering great losses.

"Heavyy execution was done in the German ranks by the fire of the British machine guns, cannon and rifles.

"South of the Somme there was heavy and continuous fighting until late in the evening.

"After they had maintained their lines all day against repeated assaults the British withdrew a short distance from their advanced positions."

London, March 29.—As the fighting zone of the mighty battle of Picardy lengthened during the past 24 hours, the German drive again slackened all along the line. Not alone did the allied front hold under the sledge hammer blows of the massed Teuton hordes, but the French, by a sudden lunge forward, pressed the Germans back two miles in the sector between Lassigny and Noyon.

Fighting of a fierce description has been raging over a front between 80 and 90 miles long—from a point near Lens, north of the Scarpe river, to the south of the Oise river.

Again the Germans suffered extremely heavy losses, their attacking ties were kept within 'normal' limits they were heavier at vital points."

The ninth day of the German drive found the world's attention directed towards three vital points on the battle front. They are:

The Arras sector, where apparently fresh battles have developed.

The Albert-Somme sector, where the British compelled the Germans to halt.

The Montdidier sector, where the French began counter attacking in great force against the southern flank of the German salient.

American soldiers taking part in the fighting have acquitted themselves valorously, winning the praise of French officers.

columns being mowed down in heaps by the galling fire of the Anglo-French machine guns and cannon.

While Field Marshal Haig in his reports to the war office dwelt upon the violence of the fighting east of Arras, stating that the Germans had succeeded in breaking into some unimportant outpost positions, no mention was made of the engagement by the official statement given out by the German war office on Thursday night. This report said:

"There were engagements on the Scarpe and Ancre rivers. Between the Somme and the Avre rivers, in the course of an attack, strongly defended villages were taken."

Field Marshal Haig reported that the British now hold 55 miles of the battle front and that heavy fighting has taken place all along this line.

The heavy assault launched east of Arras, was carried out with massed forces and was supported by great clouds of smoke by which the Germans had hoped to cloak their movements. As the smoke began to roll from the German trenches the British artillery cut loose, dropping an endless stream of shells amidst the fumes.

The attacks made by the Germans from the Arras sector to the south of the Somme are less violent than that on the Scarpe, but were pressed home with great determination.

The village of Dolancourt has been the scene of a bloody struggle and has changed hands at least twice.

Dernacourt is nothing but a mass of wrecked houses, for it had been heavily battered by both British and German artillery. However, the British and Germans fought at hand to hand grips amidst these piles of debris and amidst their dead as though the possession of Dernacourt offered a most important step towards victory.

The Germans gained possession of the place, but the British quickly drove them.

Dernacourt was only one of a series of blasted villages on the line from Albert to the Arras Cambrai road for which both sides contended with grim desperation.

In the Chipilly sector (on the Somme river) the German front is now about fifteen miles from Amiens, the allied base.

South of the Somme there was a bitter struggle for a series of fortified villages, some of which changed hands several times.

The French are putting up a heroic struggle against the Germans and the poilus are fighting like demons. German soldiers of the army of the crown prince were driven from several villages west of Montdidier at the point of the bayonet. The new French positions were quickly organized and the line held solidly against all German efforts at recapture. This information indicated that the Teutons have been thrown back into Montdidier.

The Anglo-French reports of severe German losses are now borne out by the German war office itself, which stated that "while the casual-

BRIEF REVIEW OF THE BATTLE NEWS

There was every indication today that the Anglo-French counter offensive against the Germans in the giant battle of Picardy is gaining momentum. The British have recaptured some of their lost ground north of the Somme river, taking some prisoners and capturing machine guns.

The United States was thrilled today by information from Paris that General Pershing, speaking in the name of his country, had placed the American army at the disposal of the French for use in this stupendous battle against the Germans.

General Pershing's offer was made to General Foch who is now being talked of as the new supreme commander-in-chief of all the Allied forces on the western battle front, if such a post is created.

Premier Clemenceau of France, was present at French headquarters when General Pershing volunteered the full use of the American army.

Violent fighting continues along the whole battle front which has now been extended until its width may be roughly estimated at from 80 to 90 miles.

In his official report to the British war office Field Marshal Haig made especial mention of the heavy new losses which were inflicted by the British upon the Germans in the past 24 hours.

North of the Somme river the Germans flung masses of reserves into the battle, but they withered away under the murderous machine gun, rifle and artillery fire of the British.

South of the Somme, after a series of savage German thrusts the British lines were withdrawn a short distance from some advanced positions.

The French have advanced as well as the British and have captured the village of Mouchel.

In the Montdidier sector (north of the Oise river) the French held with bulldog firmness to the villages captured from the Germans yesterday, when the Germans were rolled back by a brilliant French bayonet charge.

The French war office also emphasized the enormous losses inflicted upon the Germans.

Paris, March 29.—The French army fighting shoulder to shoulder with the British on the Picardy front, have taken the village of Mouchel, the war office announced today.

In the Montdidier sector there has been a continuation of the heavy fighting, the Germans sustaining enormous losses. The villages captured by the French in that district yesterday were retained.

"We have held the villages captured from the Germans yesterday," the official communique said. "We have completed our success by taking Mouchel in the Montdidier sector. In the fighting in that district the enemy's losses were exceedingly heavy. The allies have victoriously held the Avre line (north of Montdidier).

KINGSTON BOY DIED OVERSEAS MARCH 27.

Ulysses French of Franklin Street, Member of Naval Militia, Died of Pneumonia Overseas—Body Will Be Brought Here.

A telegram received from the war department Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. William W. French of No. 126 Franklin street, announced the death on March 27th of their son, Ulysses French, who was a member of the Naval Militia. Death was due to pneumonia.

The place where French died was not stated in the telegram received from the war department, but it occurred overseas. He was home on furlough for several days in February, leaving Kingston on February 22d to return to New York city. He sailed on the former steamship Leviathan from an American port several days later. He had previously made one trip across the ocean.

Mr. French was 24 years old. In June of last year he enlisted in the Naval Militia with a number of other young men of Kingston and after being stationed for a time at Poughkeepsie was sent to Tarrytown for training, subsequently being transferred to one of the Atlantic ports. From the time of his enlistment until February he visited his home several times.

Prior to his enlistment in the Naval Militia, he was employed for some time at the grocery store of A. D. Rose of Franklin street. He was a graduate of the Kingston high school and a member of the class of 1916. Both at the high school and at Kingston Academy he was prominent in school athletics, having been captain of the high school track teams and making track records. He had many friends in Kingston and was popular with the many people with whom he came in contact. Socially he was a member of Charles DeWitt Council No. 91, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and was also a regular attendant and member of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

He is survived by his parents and one sister, Miss Agnes French. The war department has informed his family that the body is being brought to America for burial.

PERSHING OFFERS ARMY TO FRANCE

American Army Placed at Disposal of France for Use in the Battle Now Going on.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Paris, March 29.—General Pershing, speaking in the name of the United States, has placed the American army at the disposal of the French for use in the great battle of Picardy, it was announced today.

General Pershing's offer was made to General Foch at the French front.

It is understood that Premier Clemenceau was at headquarters when General Pershing placed the American military resources at the disposition of the French government.

BRITISH RETREAT PART OF WAR PLAN

General Bell, Just Back From France, Says it was Prearranged--Morale of Allied Armies Excellent, he Says.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 29.—Major General J. Franklin Bell, commander of the 77th division of the National Army, just back from France, told the Senate Military Affairs Committee today the British withdrawal in the face of the German drive was prearranged.

"You may have heard that the withdrawal of the British was prearranged," said General Bell. "That is true. I know in a general way something about their plans which I learned confidentially while I was abroad."

The general stated there was no objection to the publication of his statement because the plans had already been carried out.

"You may have seen that General Ludendorff said that it took two months to prepare for the drive," said Bell. "It took longer. There seems to be an impression that the British were partially ignorant of what was going on. That is not true. I personally know that the British made the best preparation possible."

General Bell described his observation in much detail. He told the committee that General Pershing has established schools to train American officers, in the scientific method of warfare worked out by the British and French. The utilization of scientific methods worked out in the past three years necessitated the formation of many new organizations of special troops, he said.

General Bell declared the morale of the American British and French troops is excellent.

"They had not the slightest fear of the German push," he said. "The closer to the front you went the better you found the morale. There was no pessimism at all except far in the rear from non-combatants who didn't know anything about conditions at the front.

"The most pessimistic expressions I heard came from the representatives of the press, who did not seem to realize that warfare is never under ideally perfect conditions. They were unduly pessimistic."

General Bell was asked for his opinion as to the wisdom of the war department's policy against the sending of any generals to France except those physically fit in every way. He at first declined to answer but later changed his mind. He declared that generals should be able to go among their troops in the trenches.

"It is a well known fact that some of the German generals in very high command are old men," he said. "But it is also true that many old men have been superseded because of physical infirmities. Von Moltke was one of these. Marshal Joffre was superseded. It is not known precisely why except to a very few and they don't talk about it. It is my mature, based on forty-four years' experience, that age is a very important factor."

General Bell pointed to Hindenburg, Ludendorff and Mackensen as exceptions.

"But then they have one of the best general staffs the world has ever seen," he added. "Physical vigor is an asset that no general can afford to disregard."

1917 WHEAT CROP

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 29.—The possibility of the food administration commandeering the 1917 wheat crop at the president's price of $2.20 if the house attempts to set $2.50 a bushel as the price for the 1918 crop, served only to strengthen the determination of representatives advocating the advanced price today.

A coalition of the representatives from the northwest and those of eastern wheat growing states, such as Virgina, Maryland and Pennsylvania was believed today to give those contending for the $2.50 price sufficient strength in the house to write the senate price fixing section into the agricultural appropriation bill when it is called up to be sent to conference.

The attitude of the food administration convinced western members of the strength of their position. They did not believe the food administrator was prepared to carry it out and if he did they pointed out, only a comparatively small portion of the 1917 crop would be affected, for the larger part already is distributed.

FARM LABOR AGENT FOR ULSTER COUNTY

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Albany, March 29.—(Special)—The State Food Commission expects in a few days to station a Farm Labor Agent for Ulster county in Kingston, to have headquarters at the County Farm Bureau office. Mr. Hanlon, assigned to Ulster county a short time ago as an emergency appointment until a suitable man could be found, will be transferred elsewhere, probably as an agent to handle labor other than farm labor. The matter of assigning an agent to Ulster county was delayed by inability to get in communication with W. H. Hook, former county agricultural agent for Ulster county, whose services were desired for the position, but who, when communicated with, declined the appointment, necessitating the sending of Mr. Hanlon to Ulster county temporarily and to make preliminary arrangements for handling the farm labor situation. It is hoped to find, within a few days, a man qualified to fill the position throughout the coming season.

AMERICANS INVADE "NO MAN'S LAND"

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

With the American Army in France, March 28.—(6 p. m.)—An American patrol on the front north of Toul crossed "No Man's Land" at daybreak, finding an empty German listening post hidden in a clump of bushes. The patrol proceeded as far as the German barbed wire, which they began to cut.

The second belt of wire proved to be electrified and some of the Americans were slightly shocked.

The Americans were discovered by German snipers who began firing, but none of the Americans were struck.

While the Americans were cutting the first strands of German wire they came upon the body of a French soldier. It was carried back across "No Man's Land" and given decent burial.

Three patrols were on duty all night in "No Man's Land" without encountering any of the enemy.

A reconnaissance group consisting of two American officers and four men spent three and a half hours—from 8:30 a. m. until noon—reconnoitering German positions. They verified that the Bavarian reserve divisions opposite the Americans have not been shifted to the British battle front.

The Americans took advantage of the ground haze to work through the barbed wire and cross "No Man's Land" and then through the German entanglements. There an officer and an enlisted man entered an enemy firing trench leaving the other officer and three men to cover them. The two Americas penetrated 600 yards of the German trench without meeting anyone. Although snipers and enemy patrols at nearby points fired upon them, the Americans returned safely with valuable information.

FOUR LIVES LOST IN NEW YORK FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 29.—Four persons, three women and one man, lost their lives in a fire which gutted two upper floors of a theatrical boarding house on West 38th street early today.

One of the women, the only one identified, was Miss Catherine Harrington, a chorus girl. Another clung to a water pipe while Luther Estes, a sailor, tried to climb up a vine along the wall. Before he could reach the girl her strength gave out and she dropped, dying later in a hospital.

Twenty-one boarders escaped, some with the aid of heroic rescue work. Another sailor hailed a passing electric light repair wagon and used its tower to rescue a woman from an upper floor.

Fireman Lawler, crawling upward on an extension ladder to reach a chorus girl crouched on a window sill while the flames leaped at her night clothes, found his ladder too short. He scaled up from the window below to the ledge she stood on and held her out of reach of the flames until other firemen raised another ladder.

A reconnaissance group consisting of two American officers and four men spent three and a half hours—from 8:30 a. m. until noon—reconnoitering German positions. They verified that the Bavarian reserve divisions opposite the Americans have not been shifted to the British battle front.

The Americans took advantage of the ground haze to work through the barbed wire and cross "No Man's Land" and then through the German entanglements. There an officer and an enlisted man entered an enemy firing trench leaving the other officer and three men to cover them. The two Americas penetrated 600 yards of the German trench without meeting anyone. Although snipers and enemy patrols at nearby points fired upon them, the Americans returned safely with valuable information.

KINGSTON BOY DIED OVERSEAS MARCH 27.

Ulysses French of Franklin Street, Member of Naval Militia, Died of Pneumonia Overseas—Body Will Be Brought Here.

A telegram received from the war department Thursday night by Mr. and Mrs. William W. French of No. 126 Franklin street, announced the death on March 27th of their son, Ulysses French, who was a member of the Naval Militia. Death was due to pneumonia.

The place where French died was not stated in the telegram received from the war department, but it occurred overseas. He was home on furlough for several days in February, leaving Kingston on February 22d to return to New York city. He sailed on the former steamship Leviathan from an American port several days later. He had previously made one trip across the ocean.

Mr. French was 24 years old. In June of last year he enlisted in the Naval Militia with a number of other young men of Kingston and after being stationed for a time at Poughkeepsie was sent to Tarrytown for training, subsequently being transferred to one of the Atlantic ports. From the time of his enlistment until February he visited his home several times.

Prior to his enlistment in the Naval Militia, he was employed for some time at the grocery store of A. D. Rose of Franklin street. He was a graduate of the Kingston high school and a member of the class of 1916. Both at the high school and at Kingston Academy he was prominent in school athletics, having been captain of the high school track teams and making track records. He had many friends in Kingston and was popular with the many people with whom he came in contact. Socially he was a member of Charles DeWitt Council, No. 91, Junior Order United American Mechanics, and was also a regular attendant and member of the Fair Street Reformed Church.

He is survived by his parents and one sister, Miss Agnes French. The war department has informed his family that the body is being brought to America for burial.

PERSHING OFFERS ARMY TO FRANCE

American Army Placed at Disposal of France for Use in the Battle Now Going on.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

BRITISH RETREAT PART OF WAR PLAN

General Bell, Just Back From France, Says it was Prearranged---Morale of Allied Armies Excellent, he Says.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Washington, March 29.—Major General J. Franklin Bell, commander of the 77th division of the National Army, just back from France, told the Senate Military Affairs Committee today the British withdrawal in the face of the German drive was prearranged.

"You may have heard that the withdrawal of the British was prearranged," said General Bell. "That is true. I know in a general way something about their plans which I learned confidentially while I was abroad."

The general stated there was no objection to the publication of his statement because the plans had already been carried out.

"You may have seen that General Ludendorff said that it took two months to prepare for the drive;" said Bell. "It took longer. There seems to be an impression that the British were partially ignorant of what was going on. That is not true. I personally know that the British made the best preparation possible."

General Bell described his observation in much detail. He told the committee that General Pershing has established schools to train American officers in the scientific method of warfare worked out by the British and French. The utilization of scientific methods worked out in the past three years necessitated the formation of many new organizations of special troops, he said.

General Bell declared the morale of the American, British and French troops is excellent.

"They had not the slightest fear of the German push," he said. "The closer to the front you went the better you found the morale. There was no pessimism at all except far in the rear from non-combatants who didn't know anything about conditions at the front.

"The most pessimistic expressions I heard came from the representatives of the press, who did not seem to realize that warfare is never under ideally perfect conditions. They were unduly pessmistic."

General Bell was asked for his opinion as to the wisdom of the war department's policy against the sending of any generals to France except those physically fit in every way. He at first declined to answer but later changed his mind. He declared that generals should be able to go among their troops in the trenches.

"It is a well known fact that some of the German generals in very high command are old men," he said. "But it is also true that many old men have been superseded because of physical infirmities. Von Moltke was one of these. Marshal Joffre was superseded. It is not known precisely why except to a very few and they don't talk about it. It is my mature, based on forty-four years' experience, that age is a very important factor."

General Bell pointed to Hindenburg, Ludendorff and Mackensen as exceptions.

"But then they have one of the best general staffs the world has ever seen," he added. "Physical vigor is an asset that no general can afford to disregard."

FOUR LIVES LOST IN NEW YORK FIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 29.—Four persons, three women and one man, lost their lives in a fire which gutted two upper floors of a theatrical boarding house on West 38th street early today.

One of the women, the only one identified, was Miss Catherine Harrington, a chorus girl. Another clung to a water pipe while Luther Estes, a sailor, tried to climb up a vine along the wall. Before he could reach the girl her strength gave out and she dropped, dying later in a hospital.

Twenty-one boarders escaped, some with the aid of heroic rescue work. Another sailor hailed a passing electric light repair wagon and used its tower to rescue a woman from an upper floor.

Fireman Lawler, crawling upward on an extension ladder to reach a chorus girl crouched on a window sill while the flames leaped at her night clothes, found his ladder too short. He scaled up from the window below to the ledge she stood on and held her out of reach of the flames until other firemen raised another ladder.

GERMAN OFFENSIVE WELL ADVERTISED

But Huns' Loud Heralding of Coming Attack Failed to Bring Terror.

MAY BE POLITICAL MOVE.

Big Drive Teaches Americans Necessity of Buying Liberty Bonds to Supply Men at Front.

The Germans have followed a favorite device in their latest offensive. Months before it broke they advertised the fact that they would attack on the western front. This advertisement served two purposes. It was so open that some people believed it was not true, for a large part of the world has become accustomed to reading Germany's intentions by taking her exactly at the opposite of her word. Then the loud heralding of the offensive served to frighten a few.

Although the Germans announced plainly enough that they would make an offensive, the allies were not able to foresee at just what part of the line it would come. There were many reports that the drive would be in Lorraine, with Nancy as an objective, but this proved to be incorrect.

There are many reasons why the Germans chose the English army as the object of their attack. These reasons are partly military and partly political.

Although France has been cruelly treated by Germany, the Germans have never been able to stir themselves up against the French as they have against the British. Any success against England is particularly welcomed in Germany. Then, too, the English army has been on the offensive more often than the French during the last year, and in war, as everything else, an attack is the best defense. The Germans reckon that if they can deliver a hard enough blow against England that army will be compelled to hold its peace for some time to come. A third reason is that geographically the English army presents a better target than the French. The English were forced when their lines were bent to retire over country which had been devastated by the Germans before the famous Hindenburg retreat.

There are no trees in this country, and enemy aeroplanes can keep close and accurate watch of troop movements.

It must be remembered that there is little or no advantage in gaining ground or even towns in the country over which the troops are fighting. Villages like Peronne are mere masses of ruins. It is not territory which Germany seeks in this attack, but a breach in the British line. The British army could well afford to retire if it could make the Germans pay a heavy enough toll in men.

It will be difficult to ascertain just how heavy the losses have been on either side. It is fair to assume that the Germans as attackers have lost more heavily, particularly as at many points in the line their bombardment failed to put English machine guns out of action. On the other hand, the English losses in prisoners and guns have been large. Moreover, it is entirely possible that the retirement of the English will force a partial withdrawal of the French line.

According to German information, American troops were employed in conjunction with the French in counter attacks near Chauny. This is the first major engagement in which Americans have taken part. It is not known how many of our men were engaged, but it may be assumed that the men who went into action were soldiers who had seen service on the French front. It is not probable that the American sector will be attacked in force for the present. On account of their great concentration of men against the English it is probable that the Germans will do their best to keep other parts of the front quiet.

An exception may be noted in the case of Italy. It is probable that an offensive may be expected here, but undoubtedly the bulk of it will be carried on by Austria. Although the Germans have announced that Austrian guns are being employed on the western front against England, it is safe to assume that these Austrian batteries are not exceedingly numerous. They are to a certain extent political guns. There is ample evidence that Austria does not want to share heavily in the losses of the big offensive against England, but in order to make a victory of political significance for her allies as well as herself Germany has put Austrian guns into action.

It has become evident that in spite of the vast scope of Germany's activities in Russia she is using comparatively few men there and none of her best troops.

The lesson of the present drive probably is that America's task in the war is heightened. It does not seem possible just now to sweep Germany out of France and Belgium without the co-operation of a very large American army. In a sense, then, every day in which Germany is held is a gain for the Allies. The Germans are trying to achieve as much as they can before our army attains its full growth. That will take time.

America must steel itself for a long period of anxiety and it must put every resource at the hands of the government to aid the American army. The Germans have put the decision clearly up to America. And among other things America is selling Liberty Bonds to help meet the situation.

The Unicorn.

The unicorn which adorns the lion in upholding the British Royal coat of arms bears the reputation of being entirely mythical. But in truth it has an actual prototype in the chiru, an antelope of western Thibet and Hindustan. By right the chiru has two horns, but it is of so pugnacious a disposition that it often loses one of them.

Although the Germans have announced that Austrian guns are being employed on the western front against England, it is safe to assume that these Austrian batteries are not exceedingly numerous. They are to a certain extent political guns. There is ample evidence that Austria does not want to share heavily in the losses of the big offensive against England, but in order to make a victory of political significance for her allies as well as herself Germany has put Austrian guns into action.

It has become evident that in spite of the vast scope of Germany's activities in Russia she is using comparatively few men there and none of her best troops.

The lesson of the present drive probably is that America's task in the war is heightened. It does not seem possible just now to sweep Germany out of France and Belgium without the co-operation of a very large American army. In a sense, then, every day in which Germany is held is a gain for the Allies. The Germans are trying to achieve as much as they can before our army attains its full growth. That will take time.

America must steel itself for a long period of anxiety and it must put every resource at the hands of the government to aid the American army. The Germans have put the decision clearly up to America. And among other things America is selling Liberty Bonds to help meet the situation.

The Unicorn.

The unicorn which adorns the lion in upholding the British Royal coat of arms bears the reputation of being entirely mythical. But in truth it has an actual prototype in the chiru, an antelope of western Thibet and Hindustan. By right the chiru has two horns, but it is of so pugnacious a disposition that it often loses one of them.

KINGSTON, N. Y., MARCH 29, 1918.

Trying to supply food products for the nation on the assumption that national and international conditions can be handled in the same manner in which local affairs are disposed of will result in failure and food profiteers will soon learn to their own cost that attempts to plunder the public will be tolerated neither by the public nor by National Food Administrator Hoover. The seizure of a stock of wheat by the food administrator of New Mexico under orders from Washington may well be cited as an example of the extreme lengths to which Administrator Hoover will go in stamping out wheat hoarding. After allowing for whatever is necessary for planting, the Government will seize wheat wherever it is withheld from the market, on the ground that such withholding is giving aid and comfort to the enemy, and wheat will be seized accordingly whenever an investigation shows unpatriotic intent or indications of profiteering by those who are holding wheat in reserve for later market developments. The wheat which the profiteers are attempting to hold was planted and harvested with no reason to suppose it would be sold at more than $2 a bushel. Later the government established and guaranteed a $2.20 basis. Holding wheat for more is profiteering, and attempting to hold it for $2.50 a bushel is nothing less than extortion from starving people and an aid to the enemy. When appeals to patriotism fail, it is time to bring on the big stick and wield it relentlessly. Food profiteers are no better and have no greater status than munitions workers or soldiers who mutiny. The food profiteer would hold his hands up in horror at the prospect of soldiers who refused to protect him and his noncombatant family, but he is doing nothing less and in addition is directing his efforts against the soldiers from whom he expects protection. Treason is treason; profiteering is not a neighborhood matter. The time has arrived for more teeth and less persuasion.

When two teachers and twenty pupils at Maysville, Kentucky, became ill after eating food cooked by the school department, the statement was promptly made that "It is believed ground glass was placed in the food by alien enemies." It is difficult for any person who has the power of co-ordinated thought to grasp the reason for the suspicion if alien enemies are suspected whenever two or more people become ill from eating food prepared at the same time, the United States is to undergo an epidemic of suspicious sicknesses, because at all times there is some one in some part of the country who uses baking powder instead of confectioner's sugar or tabasco sauce instead of catsup. Then periodically some one who has frozen the ice cream intended for the church social forgets to see whether the freezer has been cleaned and there is an outbreak of ptomaine poisoning. Amateur cooks always make errors which are more or less distressing but usually not dangerous. Ground glass appears to have come in vogue as the agency for damage in the stories which have been set afloat in all parts of the country regarding the work of alien enemies. It is not known the fact that ground glass instead of something else happened to enter the mind of the first story teller. Imitation surely is the sincerest flattery; in all parts of the country it is ground glass which is being suspected because ground glass appeared in the first story of wholesale sickness due to improper cooking. Cooking in our own high school has been of a high grade ever since the school kitchen was established. If by any mischance some one should prepare a mixture which caused teachers and pupils to become ill, would we jump to the conclusion that alien enemies had been busy? In what way would the alien enemy cause be thereby advanced?

Asininity run wild marks the insistent demands of certain distinguished gentlemen who believe that the next Liberty Loan will be a failure in New York city unless a trench is dug in Central Park to show the people who may care to visit it what a trench looks like in France. Undoubtedly patriotism is their underlying motive; they want the success of the next loan assured and can see no way to make it a success except by digging a trench and saying to the public: "Now that is a trench; our boys 'Over There' fight from trenches like that; if you want to get them out of the trenches, you must help win the war, and to help win the war you must buy a Liberty Bond." If example is all that the trench adherents desire, there are dozens of other ways in which they can more forcibly bring home the lessons of the war. They might, for instance, point out any of the streets where trenches have been dug already for public improvements; or call attention to any building that is being razed, or display pictures of the bread lines which daily formed in various parts of New York until the war began, and pointing to any one of them: say "That is only a sample of what America will come to if Germany wins the war." Or they might gather together men who have been disabled and are being discharged from hospitals, and say: "Unless America wins the war we will have thousands and hundreds of thousands of young men like that." That, however, would be too unaesthetic. There must be a nicely dug trench in Central Park where people may drive in their automobiles and have a chance to swap gossip—only it isn't called that among the aesthetic. The most important problem for their stupendous intellects now is whether the trench shall be dug in the South Meadow or the Cow Pasture. By all means dig a trench—somewhere, anywhere—and in it place some of the aesthetic anaemics whose idea of the exigencies of war and the demands of the nation are inalienably associated with minature trenches artistically located which shall be plentifully besprinkled with powder of the face variety and balls whose principal ingredients are liquor and seltzer.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Well, this cook has a record." "How so?" "She broke something before she started in." "What on earth was that?" "Her promise to come."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

How Mark Twain Saved.

Mark Twain says that in his earlier days he did not enjoy the exceptional prosperity which came later in his career. It is commonly the lot of genius to suffer neglect at first and the experience did not affect his abiding good nature. In a conversation with William Dean Howells on one occasion the subject of literary vicissitudes are broached by the humorist.

"My difficulties taught me some thrift," he observed. "But I never knew whether it was wiser to spend my last nickel for a cigar to smoke or for an apple to devour."

"I am astonished," observed Mr Howells. "That a person of so little decision should meet with so much wordly success."

Mark Twain nodded very gravely. "Indecision about spending money," he said, "is worthy of cultivation. When I couldn't decide what to buy with my last nickel, I kept it, and so become rich."—Boys' Life.

Later Than Ever.

Uncle Lige brought a clock, so tall that it was almost impossible to get it into the house. The old man was extremely proud of it, and found it very good company. He would lie awake nights to hear it tick. One night the clock got out of order, and began to strike.

The old man awoke and counted one hundred and two. He promptly sat up in bed and calling to his wife said, "Cynthy, get up, get up. It's later than I've ever knowed it to be." Everybody's.

Had a Different Object.

Although only 17, he had come to "join up" and was in the recruiting office answering some questions the sergeant was putting to him.

"Look here, my man," said the sergeant, "are you willing to die for your country?"

The recruit opened his eyes with astonishment. "No, sir," he replied "I'm joining up to make a German die for his!"—London Chronicle.

Cooking in our own high school has been of a high grade ever since the school kitchen was established. If by any mischance some one should prepare a mixture which caused teachers and pupils to become ill, would we jump to the conclusion that alien enemies had been busy? In what way would the alien enemy cause be thereby advanced?

Assininity run wild marks the insistent demands of certain distinguished gentlemen who believe that the next Liberty Loan will be a failure in New York city unless a trench is dug in Central Park to show the people who may care to visit it what a trench looks like in France. Undoubtedly patriotism is their underlying motive; they want the success of the next loan assured and can see no way to make it a success except by digging a trench and saying to the public: "Now that is a trench; our boys 'Over There' fight from trenches like that; if you want to get them out of the trenches, you must help win the war, and to help win the war you must buy a Liberty Bond." If example is all that the trench adherents desire, there are dozens of other ways in which they can more forcibly bring home the lessons of the war. They might, for instance, point out any of the streets where trenches have been dug already for public improvements; or call attention to any building that is being razed, or display pictures of the bread lines which daily formed in various parts of New York until the war began, and pointing to any one of them: say "That is only a sample of what America will come to if Germany wins the war." Or they might gather together men who have been disabled and are being discharged from hospitals, and say: "Unless America wins the war we will have thousands and hundreds of thousands of young men like that." That, however, would be too unaesthetic. There must be a nicely dug trench in Central Park where people may drive in their automobiles and have a chance to swap gossip—only it isn't called that among the aesthetic. The most important problem for their stupendous intellects now is whether the trench shall be dug in the South Meadow or the Cow Pasture. By all means dig a trench—somewhere, anywhere—and in it place some of the aesthetic anaemics whose idea of the exigencies of war and the demands of the nation are inalienably associated with minature trenches artistically located which shall be plentifully besprinkled with powder of the face variety and balls whose principal ingredients are liquor and seltzer.

LITTLE LAUGHS.

"Well, this cook has a record." "How so?" "She broke something before she started in." "What on earth was that?" "Her promise to come."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Black—"He's a young lawyer, and desperately in love!" White—"Yes, he enters an appearance at the girl's home three nights a week, pleads his case, receives an adverse decision, and then appeals again!"—Puck.

"Do plain girls or pretty girls do better in business?" "It's about a toss-up. The plain girls don't make so many mistakes, but there are fewer kicks about the blunders the pretty girls make."—Boston Transcript.

First Boarder—"It would be rather unfortunate if anything happened to Hoover just now, wouldn't it?" Second Boarder—Oh, I don't know. I have an idea that our landlady could fill his place and could give him cards and spades."—Life

"The trouble is that you Americans don't understand grand opera." "That's what I have been telling my wife," agreed Mr. Cumrox. "If we understood the proposition better, we wouldn't be paying ten or fifteen dollars a seat for it."—Washington Star.

How Mark Twain Saved.

Mark Twain says that in his earlier days he did not enjoy the exceptional prosperity which came later in his career. It is commonly the lot of genius to suffer negect at first and the experience did not affect his abiding good nature. In a conversation with William Dean Howells on one occasion the subject of literary vicissitudes are broached by the humorist.

"My difficulties taught me some thrift," he observed. "But I never knew whether it was wiser to spend my last nickel for a cigar to smoke or for an apple to devour."

"I am astonished," observed Mr Howells, "that a person of so little decision should meet with so much wordly success."

Mark Twain nodded very gravely. "Indecision about spending money," he said, "is worthy of cultivation. When I couldn't decide what to buy with my last nickel, I kept it, and so become rich."—Boys' Life.

Later Than Ever.

Uncle Lige brought a clock, so tall that it was almost impossible to get it into the house. The old man was extremely proud of it, and found it very good company. He would lie awake nights to hear it tick. One night the clock got out of order, and began to strike.

The old man awoke and counted one hundred and two. He promptly sat up in bed and calling to his wife said, "Cynthy, get up, get up. It's later than I've ever knowed it to be." Everybody's.

Had a Different Object.

Although only 17, he had come to "join up" and was in the recruiting office answering some questions the sergeant was putting to him.

"Look here, my man," said the sergeant, "are you willing to die for your country?"

The recruit opened his eyes with astonishment. "No, sir," he replied. "I'm joining up to make a German die for his!"—London Chronicle.

C. & K. Easter Hats for Men

For Easter!

There's a good deal more than style to look for in Easter clothes this year, for this year's Easter parade is going to be a patriotic procession. This means that quality and value are going to be important, because conservation is both patriotic and important. In you have absolute assurance of quality and value---an assurance not "made-to-order" for our times, but a reputation extending back nearly to the Civil War.

The right front overlaps the left in surplice effect. The collar is wide over the shoulders and has smart lines. The sleeve is comfortable and finished with a pretty cuff. The pattern is in 7 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measure. It requires 2¾ yards of 44 inch material for a 36 inch size.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Rondout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

VICTORY MENUS.

These menus, planned to conserve time, labor and money, to save the foods that are scare and use those of which there is an abundance, are Victory Menus in more senses than one. They are prepared by the Department of Home Economics of the State College of Agriculture and endorsed by the New York State Food Commission.

Saturday—Porkless Day.

Breakfast—*Baked bananas, yellow cornmeal with top milk, *bran muffins, coffee.

Lunch or Supper—Corn oysters with tomato sauce, reheated bran muffins, *cocoa.

Dinner—Polenta pie, buttered turnips, victory bread, *rice pudding.

Milk for the children to drink at each meal.

(*May be omitted and the meal still balanced.)

Cheese is one of the few foods of which we are told we may eat plenty. There is an abundant supply of cheese on hand which must be consumed. Although it is a food of great value, many people find it difficult to digest. This is because they do not know how it should be eaten. Cheese is a concentrated food and should be combined with milk, breadcrumbs, rice or the like. It should not be cooked so long as to become hard or stringy. It combines extremely well with potatoes. When not used in such combinations, cheese should be eaten with acid fruits or crisp vegetables.

Corn Oysters.

1 cup corn, 1 teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 cup mashed potatoes.

Mix the corn, the potato, salt, pepper and the egg yolk thoroughly. Beat the egg white until it is stiff and fold it into the other mixture. Bake on a greased griddle, in small spoonfuls—shaped like an oyster.

Polenta Pie.

1 cup yellow cornmeal, grated cheese, 1 cup milk, sauce, 1 tablespoon cornstarch, salt, 1 tablespoon oil or butter.

Make a very stiff mush of the cornmeal; spread it out to cool in a sheet about one inch thick (left-over mush may be used). Make a smooth, white sauce of the milk, cornstarch and butter. Butter a baking dish. Put in a layer of mush, sprinkle it with cheese and a few tablespoons of the white sauce. Repeat the layers until the dish is full, and bake it until the top is nicely browned.

Recipes for any of the dishes in these menus which cannot be found in cook books may be had by writing to the Department of Home Economics, State College of Agriculture, Ithaca, N. Y.

Our Service Flag

THERE ARE MORE than 1100 stars in the Service Flag of this Company. We mention it first, as a matter of business pride, second as an indication of the necessity for conserving labor and preventing waste.

WITH SO LARGE A NUMBER of men in the service of the nation, and with an unprecedented programme of construction made necessary by increased demands for telephone service, the conservation of labor is necessary.

THE LABOR EXPENDED in collecting overdue telephone bills, which in some cases is duplication upon duplication of effort, would be unnecessary if these accounts were paid within the reasonable specified period of time.

WE BELIEVE that a very large percentage of this labor can be eliminated and that our subscribers in general, appreciating as they do that war-time efficiency means making every ounce of labor count, will extend their hearty co-operation.

CONFIRMATION IN LUTHERAN CHURCH

At the Confirmation service in the Spring Street German Lutheran Church, last Sunday morning the following were confirmed: Arthur F. Menzel, Carl W. Gille, William M. Brandt, Harry J. Nagele, Friedrich P. Paulus, Katherine F Klaus, Josephine A. Thiel, Aviena A. Salladin, Elsie E. Fuechsle. At the English evening service the following adults were confirmed: Albert E. Smith, William L. Ellsworth, Florence R. Mellert. Special music was rendered, and the church was handsomely decorated with palms and flowers, garlands of cedar and Easter lilies being twined around the columns. At the evening service, in English, Pastor Schmidtkonz addressed the congregation and especially the newly confirmed members of the church as follows.

Beloved Friends:

Today we enter into Holy Week. In this week the holy passion of our Lord should occupy our minds. Our thoughts should be with our dear, suffering and dying Saviour. The contemplation of His passion should fill our hearts with holy emotions; for all that Jesus suffered He has suffered for us. We should say: Oh, my dear Saviour, how much hast Thou endured, what hast Thou suffered for me to redeem me Accept by thanks for all Thy suffering and draw me unto Thee that I may cling to Thee in life and in death, that I may live for Thee; that I may hate and despise sin in every shape and form and be Thine forever.

Palm Sunday is in many ways a great day It is a great day for the church at large. On this day thousands and thousands of children, of young men and women in all parts of the world, are bowing down before the altar of God and vowing to be faithful to Him until death by the act of confirmation

This is a great day for this congregation. A number of children, men and women are added to our church. This morning a class of nine children were confirmed at this altar and this evening four adults shall be confirmed This is a splendid increase to our congregation. Let us praise God and thank Him for what He has done for this church.

This is a great day, too, for parents and husbands and wives who rejoice to see their dear ones stand at the altar giving themselves entirely to the Lord. There is joy not only in heaven today, but in many a heart here on earth, here in this house of God. Who of us would not rejoice over the fact that these souls are led to Christ to be saved and have everlasting life? Finally it is also a great day of joy for you catechumens. Jesus died for you before you were born and He loved you with an everlasting love. You have been instructed in the Christian religion and you accepted Jesus Christ as your own personal Saviour. Today you are here to confess Him before men and to make your vow to be faithful to Him and to His church until death saying: Let it be known to old and young to Christ, my Saviour, I belong. Surely this is a great day for you.

The words from the Holy Book which I wish to give to you as a motto for this present hour and as a guiding star for your future life are found in Revelations 3:11, and read: "Hold that fast which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Let we call to you and to all who are assembled here with two words, which I hope you will never forget: "Hold fast!"

Hold fast, first of all, to the Word of God In these days of rationalism, in these days of shallow infidelity, in these days of wordliness, in these days when even men of God, so-called, love to criticise God's eternal message, let me urge you to hold fast to the inspired words of God. I have been instructing you in the pure word of God, that you might be saved, for the Gospel of Jesus Christ "is the power of God until salvation to every one that believeth" I would urge upon you, therefore, to read and hear God's word. Do not let a Sunday pass by without hearing God's word preached; do not let a day pass without reading God's message. "Search the Scriptures." You have already learned to know them in part. How foolish, should you imagine the task finished. The Bible is not only a text book for the school; it is the book for your whole life.

Yes, "search the Scriptures"—and you shall find that the Gospel of Jesus Christ is indeed "the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." You propose to call yourselves "Evangelical Lutheran" Christians; what does that signify, but that you mean to be Christians who love the Word of God who make it the rule of their faith and life, saying:

Thy word is everlasting truth:
How pure is every page
That Holy Book shall guide our youth
And well support our age.

I would have you not only to hold fast to the inspired word of God but hold fast to the doctrines of the Lutheran Church. I emphasize this because the Lutheran Church stands on the terms of God's word. The Lutheran Church, in her faith and doctrines, is founded upon the Word of God and her confessions harmonize with the Holy Scriptures and they never change. The two principle doctrines of our church are: The Word of God is the only rule of faith and life. We are justified and saved by faith, and by faith alone, through the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ. You cannot change these doctrines until God Almighty changes the Bible.

Hold fast, therefore, to these doctrines, and you can well hold fast to them, because you have learned them. In your future life many will try to draw you away from the pure teachings of the Word of God and from your church. But do not believe them; do not trust them nor follow them. "Hold fast that which thou hast, that no man take thy crown." Hold fast to your church, which rests upon the eternal foundation of the Word of God At your confirmation today you vow fidelity to your own Lutheran Church—and she is worthy of your fidelity. As she has been, so she is and ever will be the most faithful guide in the way of salvation.

Hold fast to the Lord Jesus Christ. Hold fast to His divinity. He is the Son of God. He is the Alpha and Omega, the beginning and the end—yesterday, today and forever. Hold fast to the Son of God. And then hold fast to the Son of Man. For your sake He became man. It was for your sins that He became man, that He might put himself under the law and die in your stead. Remember that this God-man is your all in all Christ and Christ only. He is your Saviour your Redeemer. He died for you and shed His blood for you on the cross. He has secured you forgiveness of sins, life and eternal salvation. Abide in Him. Hold fast to Him. It is He that said: "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee a crown of eternal life."

Hold fast to eternal life; hold it fast, no difference what may come in the future—let go of everything rather than eternal life. On that grat day when you and I stand before God, what a joy it will be if I can say: Here are the children, here are the men and women whom I have taught and confirmed; they have promised to be faithful until death; here they are. May the Lord guide us by His hand to our Fatherland. Amen.

MORE WAYS WITH CHICKEN.

We cannot afford to despise an old fowl, for there are many and appetizing ways to treat them. Time is always necessary to bring about good results.

Ragout of Chicken.—Clean and disjoint a large fowl. Take the dark meat, freed from skin and bone, and put it through the meat chopper. Season well with salt and pepper, a few drops of onion juice, or a clove of garlic finely minced; then add a well-beaten egg. Make into small balls and set aside. Cover the bones and white meat with three cupfuls of boiling water and simmer gently until the meat is tender. Set aside, and when cooled cut the meat in dice. Blend together two heaping tablespoonfuls of sweet fat and the same amount of flour; when well browned add very slowly two cupfuls of chicken stock and stir until it thickens, then add salt and pepper, and a quarter of a teaspoonful of curry powder. Drop in the meat balls and cook for half an hour; then add the diced meat; cook 15 minutes longer. Dish and serve with rice.

Chicken Pie.—A fine pie can be made using an old bird. First cook it as for a stew, adding a small slice of onion or a clove of garlic for flavor. Lay the chicken in the dish, season well and cover with the broth, not too much, then put biscuit closely together over the top, using any good baking powder biscuit recipe. There will be plenty of room for the gas to escape between the biscuit. Just before serving add a cupful of good thick sweet cream, making this a queen of chicken pies.

Old fowls may be stewed, the bones removed and then cooked to remove all the gelatin; pour this broth, with the addition of a little gelatin, over the chicken and mold. When cold it may be cut in neat slices, served as a salad with salad dressing or as cold sliced meat. Hard-cooked eggs may be added to the mold if desired, making a most attractive dish when cut.

Chicken soup may also be made from old fowl, and as there are few flavors in soups more appetizing than chicken it is a general favorite.

And then hold fast to the Son of Man. For your sake He became man. It was for your sins that He became man, that He might put himself under the law and die in your stead. Remember that this God-man is your all in all Christ and Christ only. He is your Saviour your Redeemer. He died for you and shed His blood for you on the cross. He has secured you forgiveness of sins, life and eternal salvation. Abide in Him. Hold fast to Him. It is He that said: "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee a crown of eternal life."

Hold fast to eternal life; hold it fast, no difference what may come in the future—let go of everything rather than eternal life. On that grat day when you and I stand before God, what a joy it will be if I can say: Here are the children, here are the men and women whom I have taught and confirmed; they have promised to be faithful until death; here they are. May the Lord guide us by His hand to our Fatherland. Amen.

MORE WAYS WITH CHICKEN.

We cannot afford to despise an old fowl, for there are many and appetizing ways to treat them. Time is always necessary to bring about good results.

Ragout of Chicken.—Clean and disjoint a large fowl. Take the dark meat, freed from skin and bone, and put it through the meat chopper. Season well with salt and pepper, a few drops of onion juice, or a clove of garlic finely minced; then add a well-beaten egg. Make into small balls and set aside. Cover the bones and white meat with three cupfuls of boiling water and simmer gently until the meat is tender. Set aside, and when cooled cut the meat in dice. Blend together two heaping tablespoonfuls of sweet fat and the same amount of flour; when well browned add very slowly two cupfuls of chicken stock and stir until it thickens, then add salt and pepper, and a quarter of a teaspoonful of curry powder. Drop in the meat balls and cook for half an hour; then add the diced meat; cook 15 minutes longer. Dish and serve with rice.

Chicken Pie.—A fine pie can be made using an old bird. First cook it as for a stew, adding a small slice of onion or a clove of garlic for flavor. Lay the chicken in the dish, season well and cover with the broth, not too much; then put biscuit closely together over the top, using any good baking powder biscuit recipe. There will be plenty of room for the gas to escape between the biscuit. Just before serving add a cupful of good thick sweet cream, making this a queen of chicken pies.

Old fowls may be stewed, the bones removed and then cooked to remove all the gelatin; pour this broth, with the addition of a little gelatin, over the chicken and mold. When cold it may be cut in neat slices, served as a salad with salad dressing or as cold sliced meat. Hard-cooked eggs may be added to the mold if desired, making a most attractive dish when cut.

Chicken soup may also be made from old fowl, and as there are few flavors in soups more appetizing than chicken it is a general favorite.

Save America's Fats— Improve America's Cooking —Use Mazola—the Oil from Indian Corn

EVERY time you fry potatoes, fish or any other food in Mazola instead of butter, you save fats—

And you improve the cooking in flavor and digestibility.

Cooking with Mazola holds the flavor of the food itself—never flavors food with the smoke of burning fat.

You can use it much hotter than butter and lard—and so make fried things digestible.

For economy—use it over and over again. It never carries taste or odor from one food to another.

Why should you melt solid fats to make an oil for shortening when Mazola is already an oil and makes such delicious pastries?

Mazola makes a perfect salad dressing, equal in quality to one made with the best olive oil, superior to one made with ordinary olive oil. It is easier to mix than an olive oil dressing.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to fry, saute, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE.

and that means something in this store.

The new spring styles of

are shown in the widest variety. They are being advertised in the leading magazines and in newspapers everywhere.

Dealers all over the United States are showing, talking and selling "Mallory" Hats at this time so that all may know more about them.

We want you to see our window displays, then come in see the hats and ask questions.

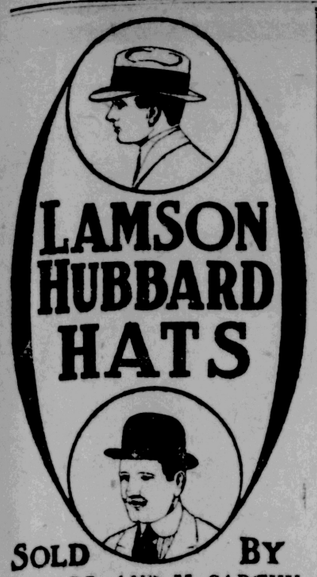

We'll gladly tell you all we know to prove their good qualities and popularity.

Save America's Fats— Improve America's Cooking —Use Mazola—the Oil from Indian Corn

EVERY time you fry potatoes, fish or any other food in Mazola instead of butter, you save fats—

And you improve the cooking in flavor and digestibility.

Cooking with Mazola holds the flavor of the food itself—never flavors food with the smoke of burning fat.

You can use it much hotter than butter and lard—and so make fried things digestible.

For economy—use it over and over again. It never carries taste or odor from one food to another.

Why should you melt solid fats to make an oil for shortening when Mazola is already an oil and makes such delicious pastries?

Mazola makes a perfect salad dressing, equal in quality to one made with the best olive oil, superior to one made with ordinary olive oil. It is easier to mix than an olive oil dressing.

For sale in pints, quarts, half gallons and gallons. For greater economy buy the large sizes.

There is a valuable Cook Book for Mazola users. It shows you how to fry, saute, make dressings and sauces more delicious, make light digestible pastry. Should be in every home. Send for it or ask your grocer. FREE.

Boil one-half pound salt cod fish until tender, drain, take out bones and shred fine. Mix with two cups mashed potatoes, beaten egg, one tablespoon milk, salt and pepper to taste. Make into cakes or balls, dip in beaten egg and crumbs. Fry in deep Mazola.

YACHT SHULTZ STARTS MONDAY

Running in Rondout Creek Between Here and Eddyville—To Launch Dry Dock—Other Navigation Notes.

The steamyacht C. A. Shultz with Captain Chris Haber at the helm will resume navigation between Rondout and Eddyville Monday morning at 6:40 o'clock from this port and will run on the same schedule as last year. The yacht will be manned by William Pardee as pilot, William Pardee, Jr., as mate, and Richard Banks as engineer. The yacht has been overhauled and is in fine shape.

Since the yacht Gardner was chartered by a New York concern to make sight-seeing tours around New York city and harbor there are no steam yachts plying from this port to down river or up river points.

The big dry dock which has been in the course of construction at the Billebrant shipyard at Connelly is so far completed that it was expected to be launched late this afternoon.

The keels of five sub chasers have been laid at the yard.

Work is also progressing on the big ships being built for the government by the Kingston Shipbuilding Corporation on the Island Dock.

The steamers Mary Powell and Albany of the Hudson River Day Line are still berthed at the Sunflower Dock in the Rondout creek where they spent the winter. It is stated that the Albany will be placed on the Rondout-New York route the morning of July 1 which is two weeks later than last year. When the Powell will be placed in commission is not known.

With no ice to speak of in the Hudson river navigation is now in full swing with tows running both ways.

TREES MARKED FOR DESTRUCTION

Kingstonians Are Indignant Over Action Taken by Board of Public Works—It is Claimed That the Board Has no Legal Right to Cut Down All the Shade Trees.

A feeling of bitter indignation and resentment has been aroused by the Board of Public Works in blazing a large number of fine shade trees to such an extent as to seriously mar their appearance, and with the announced determination of cutting them down.

Lawyers say this action is without warrant of law, and that the board is destitute of power to destroy trees. The penal law provides that any person who injures a shade or ornamental tree is guilty of a misdemeanor, and that all persons who aid or abet in the injury are guilty as principals. Property owners are not obliged to take the slow method of suing the city but can pursue the more speedy one of prosecuting the members of the board individually.

Under the criminal law the punishment on conviction of a misdemeanor may be a year in the penitentiary, and a fine of $500.

The civil remedy awards damages three times the value of the trees injured. It is claimed that trees valued at over $20,000 have been marked for destruction.

Surely $60,000 would be a big bill to pay, not to speak of the immense loss the city would sustain by being deprived of what now constitutes one of its principal attractions.

YACHT SHULTZ STARTS MONDAY

Running in Rondout Creek Between Here and Eddyville—To Launch Dry Dock—Other Navigation Notes.

The steamyacht C. A. Shultz with Captain Chris Haber at the helm will resume navigation between Rondout and Eddyville Monday morning at 6:40 o'clock from this port and will run on the same schedule as last year. The yacht will be manned by William Pardee as pilot, William Pardee, Jr., as mate, and Richard Banks as engineer. The yacht has been overhauled and is in fine shape.

Since the yacht Gardner was chartered by a New York concern to make sight-seeing tours around New York city and harbor there are no steam yachts plying from this port to down river or up river points.

The big dry dock which has been in the course of construction at the Hiltebrant shipyard at Connelly is so far completed that it was expected to be launched late this afternoon.

The keels of five sub-chasers have been laid at the yard.

Work is also progressing on the big ships being built for the government by the Kingston Shipbuilding Corporation on the Island Dock.

The steamers Mary Powell and Albany of the Hudson River Day Line are still berthed at the Sunflower Dock in the Rondout creek where they spent the winter. It is stated that the Albany will be placed on the Rondout-New York route the morning of July 1, which is two weeks later than last year. When the Powell will be placed in commission is not known.

With no ice to speak of in the Hudson river navigation is now in full swing with tows running both ways.

TREES MARKED FOR DESTRUCTION

Kingstonians Are Indignant Over Action Taken by Board of Public Works—It is Claimed That the Board Has no Legal Right to Cut Down All the Shade Trees.

A feeling of bitter indignation and resentment has been aroused by the Board of Public Works in blazing a large number of fine shade trees to such an extent as to seriously mar their appearance, and with the announced determination of cutting them down.

Lawyers say this action is without warrant of law, and that the board is destitute of power to destroy trees. The penal law provides that any person who injures a shade or ornamental tree is guilty of a misdemeanor, and that all persons who aid or abet in the injury are guilty as principals. Property owners are not obliged to take the slow method of suing the city but can pursue the more speedy one of prosecuting the members of the board individually.

Under the criminal law the punishment on conviction of a misdemeanor may be a year in the penitentiary, and a fine of $500.

The civil remedy awards damages three times the value of the trees injured. It is claimed that trees valued at over $20,000 have been marked for destruction.

Surely $60,000 would be a big bill to pay, not to speak of the immense loss the city would sustain by being deprived of what now constitutes one of its principal attractions.

Before or After the Fact?

There must be a good many surprised persons in the motorcar game, else how explain all the accessories?—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Nursery Note.

It costs Paris nearly $100,000 a year to care for the trees on its streets and boulevards and in its parks, more than 1,000 new ones being planted annually.

FISHING LICENSE FOR NON-RESIDENTS

Fishermen, who are not residents of the state of New York and who wish to angle in the fresh waters of the state, must hereafter secure a non-resident fishing license, according to an amendment of the Conservation Law signed by Governor Whitman. Licenses may be procured from any county, city or town clerk for the sum of $2.50, and are good for the calendar year.

Formerly, the non-resident fishing license law applied only to fresh waters forming a part of the state boundary, or through which the state boundary runs. The new provisions of the law require that a person who is a non-resident of the state must be in possession of a non-resident license to angle in any of the state waters.

The law is to be strictly enforced by the Conservation Commission, according to Llewellyn Legge, chief of the Division of Fish and Game, who has issued an order to all game protectors directing them upon meeting fishermen, to ascertain if they are non-residents of the state, and if so and it is found that they have failed to procure a non-resident fishing license to proceed against them according to the law. Persons under sixteen years of age are, however, exempt from the operation of the law.

Another exception is made in the case of waters which form the international boundary with the Dominion of Canada. If non-residents of Canada may fish on the Canadian side of the international boundary line without a Canadian fishing license, the reciprocal privilege is granted to non-residents of the state of New York to fish on the New York side of the boundary line without obtaining the non-resident fishing license.

The "Good Witch" of Ipswich takes nothing for granted. In gymnasium and laboratory tests she measured 30,000 feet to make sure of establishing correct standardized sizes. You don't have to stretch Ipswich Hosiery to fit. Every pair is knitted to fit and the size marked plainly on each stocking is not about right but exactly right.

Fix this fact firmly in your mind—Ipswich Series Hosiery fit as well after washing as before.

Before or After the Fact?

There must be a mob of unprincipled persons in the motorcar game, else how explain all the accessori.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

Nursery Note.

It costs Paris nearly $100,000 a year to care for the trees on its streets and boulevards and in its parks, more than 1,000 new ones being planted annually.

FISHING LICENSE FOR NON-RESIDENTS

Fishermen, who are not residents of the state of New York and who wish to angle in the fresh waters of the state, must hereafter secure a non-resident fishing license, according to an amendment of the Conservation Law signed by Governor Whitman. Licenses may be procured from any county, city or town clerk for the sum of $2.50, and are good for the calendar year.

Formerly, the non-resident fishing license law applied only to fresh waters forming a part of the state boundary, or through which the state boundary runs. The new provisions of the law require that a person who is a non-resident of the state must be in possession of a non-resident license to angle in any of the state waters.

The law is to be strictly enforced by the Conservation Commission, according to Llewellyn Legge, chief of the Division of Fish and Game, who has issued an order to all game protectors directing them upon meeting fishermen, to ascertain if they are non-residents of the state, and if so and it is found that they have failed to procure a non-resident fishing license to proceed against them according to the law. Persons under sixteen years of age are, however, exempt from the operation of the law.

Another exception is made in the case of waters which form the international boundary with the Dominion of Canada. If non-residents of Canada may fish on the Canadian side of the international boundary line without a Canadian fishing license, the reciprocal privilege is granted to non-residents of the state of New York to fish on the New York side of the boundary line without obtaining the non-resident fishing license.

IPSWICH SERIES HOSIERY
For Men and Women

30,000 Feet Measured

The "Good Witch" of Ipswich takes nothing for granted. In gymnasium and laboratory tests she measured 30,000 feet to make sure of establishing correct standardized sizes. You don't have to stretch Ipswich Hosiery to fit. Every pair is knitted to fit and the size marked plainly on each stocking is not about right but exactly right.

Fix this fact firmly in your mind—Ipswich Series Hosiery fit as well after washing as before.

Ipswich Hosiery must make good or Ipswich Mills will.

COULD NOT STAND SO LONELY A LIFE

13 Year Old Natalie Rand of West Camp Was Not Allowed Young Companions and Decided to Make Her Own Way in the World.

Natalie Rand, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Nathaniel Rand of West Camp, ran away from her home on Thursday afternoon while her parents were shopping in this city, and walked to Kingston where she spent the night with the wife of a well known professional man with whom she had become acquainted some time ago.

The Rands live on a farm near West Camp. It is an out of the way place and the children do not have the companionship of other children. They live apart from all affairs which delight young people and restrictions which prevented them from having youthful companionship have made life almost unendurable at times. The girl thought it all over and when her parents started for Kingston in their automobile Thursday morning she decided not to stay on the farm any longer but to earn her own living. The manner in which she would be able to make her own way in the world was not entirely clear to her but she determined that she must go somewhere and do something.

The parents reported her disappearance to the police officers of Saugerties after they had returned home, and during the evening her disappearance was reported to the police of Kingston and other nearby places.

This morning the young girl's protector reported to the police that she was at her home, and within a short time Rand, accompanied by a policeman, arrived and took the girl away.

Musical Comedy Tonight.

"Follow Me," with Liane Held, Anna Held's daughter, taking the leading role, will appear at the Kingston Opera House this evening. It is one of the best musical comedies now playing and its success is indicated by the fact that it has traveled this season from Coast to Coast and nearly back again. The chorus is remarkable for its looks, its voices and its costumes, while Liane Held has received an ovation wherever she has appeared.

Church Rally and Fair.

Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church will hold a "tribe rally" and fair on the evenings of April 2 to 5 inclusive. There will be many interesting features. Among the speakers will be the Rev. F. B. Segley, the Rev. J. W. Hillman, the Rev. S. T. Quann, and the Rev. L. H. Taylor.

NO-LICENSE RALLY AT TABERNACLE

Hon. James H. Woertendyke of Los Angeles to Speak Sunday Afternoon in Aid of Local Dry Campaign.

Kingston people will have the opportunity of hearing one of the great temperance orators of the country at a no-license rally to be held at the tabernacle on Delaware avenue on Sunday afternoon a half past three o'clock. The Hon. James H. Woertendyke of Los Angeles, Cal., distinguished both as a lawyer and an orator, will speak on the topic, "Law Protective to the Liquor Traffic." Mr. Woertendyke is a very close and logical reasoner, is thoroughly familiar with the law as affecting the liquor traffic and presents a strong and unanswerable argument. His addresses are lighted up by occasional snatches of humor and his powers of dramatic description were realized by those who heard him last week on his unexpected visit to Kingston in the famous court scene where he secured the acquittal of a drunkard in a well known murder trial.

The no-license campaign is going forward with energy and vigor. Various committees are at work in a quiet and effective way. The sentiment in favor of prohibition is steadily gaining ground. The women are much interested and it is anticipated will cast a very large vote at the election on April 16. The days when women will register are Friday and Saturday, April 5 and 6, when the places of registration will be open from eight o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Woertendyke will not only speak at the tabernacle, but will also make two other addresses in Kingston. On Sunday morning he will speak at the Rondout Presbyterian Church on "The Worth or Value of Man." In the evening he will give his address on "What Should the Government Do With the Liquor Traffic?" at a union service in the First Reformed Church.

COULD NOT STAND SO LONELY A LIFE

13 Year Old Natalie Rand of West Camp Was Not Allowed Young Companions and Decided to Make Her Own Way in the World.

Natalie Rand, the thirteen-year-old daughter of Nathaniel Rand of West Camp, ran away from her home on Thursday afternoon while her parents were shopping in this city, and walked to Kingston where she spent the night with the wife of a well known professional man with whom she had become acquainted some time ago.

The Rands live on a farm near West Camp. It is an out of the way place and the children do not have the companionship of other children. They live apart from all affairs which delight young people and restrictions which prevented them from having youthful companionship have made life almost unendurable at times. The girl thought it all over and when her parents started for Kingston in their automobile Thursday morning she decided not to stay on the farm any longer but to earn her own living. The manner in which she would be able to make her own way in the world was not entirely clear to her but she determined that she must go somewhere and do something.

The parents reported her disappearance to the police officers of Saugerties after they had returned home, and during the evening her disappearance was reported to the police of Kingston and other nearby places.

This morning the young girl's protector reported to the police that she was at her home, and within a short time Rand, accompanied by a policeman, arrived and took the girl away.

Musical Comedy Tonight.

"Follow Me," with Liane Held, Anna Held's daughter, taking the leading role, will appear at the Kingston Opera House this evening. It is one of the best musical comedies now playing and its success is indicated by the fact that it has traveled this season from coast to coast and nearly back again. The chorus is remarkable for its looks, its voices and its costumes, while Liane Held has received an ovation wherever she has appeared.

Church Rally and Fair.

Franklin Street A. M. E. Zion Church will hold a "tribe rally" and fair on the evenings of April 2 to 5 inclusive. There will be many interesting features. Among the speakers will be the Rev. F. B. Seeley, the Rev. J. W. Hillman, the Rev. S. T. Quann, and the Rev. L. H. Taylor.

NO-LICENSE RALLY AT TABERNACLE

Hon. James H. Woertendyke of Los Angeles to Speak Sunday Afternoon in Aid of Local Dry Campaign.

Kingston people will have the opportunity of hearing one of the great temperance orators of the country at a no-license rally to be held at the tabernacle on Delaware avenue on Sunday afternoon a half past three o'clock. The Hon. James H. Woertendyke of Los Angeles, Cal., distinguished both as a lawyer and an orator, will speak on the topic, "Law Protective to the Liquor Traffic." Mr. Woertendyke is a very close and logical reasoner, is thoroughly familiar with the law as affecting the liquor traffic and presents a strong and unanswerable argument. His addresses are lighted up by occasional snatches of humor and his powers of dramatic description were realized by those who heard him last week on his unexpected visit to Kingston in the famous court scene where he secured the acquittal of a drunkard in a well known murder trial.

The no-license campaign is going forward with energy and vigor. Various committees are at work in a quiet and effective way. The sentiment in favor of prohibition is steadily gaining ground. The women are much interested and it is anticipated will cast a very large vote at the election on April 16. The days when women will register are Friday and Saturday, April 5 and 6, when the places of registration will be open from eight o'clock in the morning until ten o'clock in the evening.

Mr. Woertendyke will not only speak at the tabernacle, but will also make two other addresses in Kingston. On Sunday morning he will speak at the Rondout Presbyterian Church on "The Worth or Value of Man." In the evening he will give his address on "What Should the Government Do With the Liquor Traffic?" at a union service in the First Reformed Church.

Druggists Here Have Something New for Colds

Applied Externally, the Body Heat Releases Ingredients in Vapor Form

COLDS GO OVER NIGHT CROUP IN 15 MINUTES

The Manufacturers Have Authorized the Local Druggists to Sell Any of the Three Sizes, 25c, 50c, or $1.00, on 30 Days' Trial.

Since its introduction here a short time ago, the new treatment for cold troubles, known as Vick's VapoRub, has aroused a great deal of interest among local people, especially among mothers with small children.

Local druggists report that numbers have taken advantage of their 30 days' trial offer to see if a 25c jar of VapoRub really will relieve these troubles externally, without having to "dose" with nauseous internal medicines.

For croup, coughs, chest colds, sore throat or bronchitis, apply VapoRub well over the throat and chest, covering with a warm flannel cloth. Leave the covering loose around the neck so the vapors arising may be freely inhaled.

In addition, VapoRub is absorbed through and stimulates the skin, taking out that tightness and soreness in the chest. For head colds, catarrh, hay fever, or asthmatic troubles, VapoRub can either be applied up the nostrils or a little melted in a spoon and the vapors inhaled.

You have to try this treatment to realize its remarkable effect in all cases of cold troubles.

HE HAS A GIRL IN CIGAR FACTORY

Kentucky Soldier in France Has Pleasant Memories of Kingston—High Wheeled Carts and no Traffic Rules on Roads in France—Candy $1.40 a Pound.

Same Place in France, March 6.—Today I received first letter from home that had my full address on it, dated February 18, so at last I know you have received my letters and stopped worrying. It is a great day for me. I had been on one of my trips for gasoline and just arrived in camp when mail came in. [illegible] is sending a package, also one from New York. When I get them I will enjoy some real American candy and what else I know not. Candy is a scarce thing for us here. One fellow who had lots of change or "beaucoup francs" bought some in town one day. Seven francs ($1.40) for a pound of almond chocolates; but then the French think Uncle Sam's men are little millionaires. Hit a town where American soldiers have not been and things are much less. We stopped in a small town once where we were the first Americans to linger and found it so. But after the first pay day it is different. Our pay is so large in comparison to the French.

Well, today is a genuine spring day. Clear as a bell and warm. This morning as we drove along the roads we saw the people out ploughing and getting ready to plant and sow. The grass is getting green and we are getting some fine balmy days. This must be a great country in the summer. Even now the days are long. The sun does not set until after 6 and I am not up in time to see it rise. We are quite a bit farther north than Kingston, and I guess in mid-summer the days must be quite some longer than back home. When we landed I know it was still dark at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

There is one thing I can't help mentioning. That is the mode of travel about here. The custom seems to be to use those two-wheeled carts with great high wheels. Everyone travels so, and heavy loads are hauled on them. They appear to be cumbersome and hard on a horse I should think, and darn slow, too. One horse is hitched in the shafts and one, two or more are attached ahead in "Indian file." Everything on four legs is used for locomotive power. Little, tiny donkeys, no bigger than a sheep, go jogging along to market and when an especially heavy man (or woman) gets on the back of the cart, the thing tips up and the animal claws in the air until the proper balance is again secured. It seems funny to us, but seems to be the regular thing over here.

And traffic rules—none. You drive where you please, when you please and as you please. If a New York traffic cop could see a busy city street he probably would drop dead. Some city streets are so narrow, one of the big U. S. army trucks just passes in between the buildings, and many streets are just alleys with no walks and the people walk in the streets. They say the streets were built narrow years ago so as to be easy to defend from an invasion. I don't know how true it is but it sure seems probable.

I see Lorin Ennist frequently, as he is near me and I go to his warehouse often on business when there. He is looking fine and seems to feel as well as he looks.

Speaking one day of Kingston, I was surprised to learn that I was talking to one of the Q. M. men who stopped for several days in town 'way back last summer. You remember the car loads off at the auto factory siding and the time the men were there waiting for transportation. His name is Kessler and he comes from Louisville, Ky., but was for a long time in the west. He liked Kingston and says he has a girl there from the cigar factory. You know all the soldiers had girls while there. It's a way soldiers have. Well, he knew of Kingston Point Park and several other places and we swapped yarns and recalled things long ago left behind. It makes one feel like meeting a fellow from home, almost. He is working here with us now, but was one of the first men in France and since has been pretty much all over the country. I have also located two other men from New York state. One from New York city and another from near Rochester. They are from somewhere near home anyway. All the men here just now seem to be from the extreme west.

The latest is "movies" at the "Y" every night. You know how crazy (?) I am for them, so I stay away and let some other "fan" have my standing room, for that is about all you get if you don't go up first thing after chow. Crowd—well, you ought to see the boys jam in. I don't know what we would do if it were not for the Y. M. C. A. The good word here seems to be "I'll meet you at the "Y." We have real boxing matches, baseball games, etc., under the direction of the "Y" men, and at night movies and lectures and occasional "stunt nights" when the boys put on their stunts. It is something like amateur night at a New York theater. If you are good it is all right. If you are not—well—bricks are not allowed to be brought in in your pockets, but apples and English walnuts, etc., are not barred, so there are some warm, but good-natured receptions. When in a town if you want to know anything, just look up the "Y." You always find what you want. Up at the front the "Y" always has a little tobacco left for the boys before they go "over the top." In other words the Y. M. C. A. is always on the job and the red triangle sure looks good to the boys over here.

Well, I guess with your meatless, wheatless, heatless, lightless and workless days over there you are sort of getting a little taste of the big struggle going on over here. I see our boys have again distinguished themselves in some way at the front. There are no details, except they are making good.

I often wonder when we will again see the welcoming hand of the Statue of Liberty, or see the glow of her light pointing out the one route we are all wishing and looking forward to. France is grand, the homebound ship will be grander but home will be grandest.

HE HAS A GIRL IN CIGAR FACTORY

Kentucky Soldier in France Has Pleasant Memories of Kingston—High Wheeled Carts and no Traffic Rules on Roads in France—Candy $1.40 a Pound.

Same Place in France, March 6.—Today I received first letter from home that had my full address on it, dated February 18, so at last I know you have received my letters and stopped worrying. It is a great day for me. I had been on one of my trips for gasoline and just arrived in camp when mail came in. ——— is sending a package, also one from New York. When I get them I will enjoy some real American candy and what else I know not. Candy is a scarce thing for us here. One fellow who had lots of change or "beaucoup francs" bought some in town one day. Seven francs ($1.40) for a pound of almond chocolates; but then the French think Uncle Sam's men are little millionaires. Hit a town where American soldiers have not been and things are much less. We stopped in a small town once where we were the first Americans to linger and found it so. But after the first pay day it is different. Our pay is so large in comparison to the French.

Well, today is a genuine spring day. Clear as a bell and warm. This morning as we drove along the roads we saw the people out ploughing and getting ready to plant and sow. The grass is getting green and we are getting some fine balmy days. This must be a great country in the summer. Even now the days are long. The sun does not set until after 6 and I am not up in time to see it rise. We are quite a bit farther north than Kingston, and I guess in mid-summer the days must be quite some longer than back home. When we landed I know it was still dark at 7:30 o'clock in the morning.

There is one thing I can't help mentioning. That is the mode of travel about here. The custom seems to be to use those two-wheeled carts with great high wheels. Everyone travels so, and heavy loads are hauled on them. They appear to be cumbersome and hard on a horse I should think, and darn slow, too. One horse is hitched in the shafts and one, two or more are attached ahead in "Indian file." Everything on four legs is used for locomotive power. Little, tiny donkeys, no bigger than a sheep, go jogging along to market and when an especially heavy man (or woman) gets on the back of the cart, the thing tips up and the animal claws in the air until the proper balance is again secured. It seems funny to us, but seems to be the regular thing over here.

And traffic rules—none. You drive where you please, when you please and as you please. If a New York traffic cop could see a busy city street he probably would drop dead. Some city streets are so narrow, one of the big U. S. army trucks just passes in between the buildings, and many streets are just alleys with no walks and the people walk in the streets. They say the streets were built narrow years ago so as to be easy to defend from an invasion. I don't know how true it is but it sure seems probable.

I see Lorin Ennist frequently, as he is near me and I go to his warehouse often on business when there. He is looking fine and seems to feel as well as he looks.

Speaking one day of Kingston, I was surprised to learn that I was talking to one of the Q. M. men who stopped for several days in town 'way back last summer. You remember the car loads off at the auto factory siding and the time the men were there waiting for transportation. His name is Kessler and he comes from Louisville, Ky., but was for a long time in the west. He liked Kingston and says he has a girl there from the cigar factory. You know all the soldiers had girls while there. It's a way soldiers have. Well, he knew of Kingston Point Park and several other places and we swapped yarns and recalled things long ago left behind. It makes one feel like meeting a fellow from home, almost. He is working here with us now, but was one of the first men in France and since has been pretty much all over the country. I have also located two other men from New York state. One from New York city and another from near Rochester. They are from somewhere near home anyway. All the men here just now seem to be from the extreme west.

The latest is "movies" at the "Y" every night. You know how crazy (?) I am for them, so I stay away and let some other "fan" have my standing room, for that is about all you get if you don't go up first thing after chow. Crowd—well, you ought to see the boys jam in. I don't know what we would do if it were not for the Y. M. C. A. The good word here seems to be "I'll meet you at the "Y." We have real boxing matches, baseball games, etc., under the direction of the "Y" men, and at night movies and lectures and occasional "stunt nights" when the boys put on their stunts. It is something like amateur night at a New York theater. If you are good it is all right. If you are not—well—bricks are not allowed to be brought in in your pockets, but apples and English walnuts, etc., are not barred, so there are some warm, but good-natured receptions. When in a town if you want to know anything, just look up the "Y." You always find what you want. Up at the front the "Y" always has a little tobacco left for the boys before they go "over the top," in other words the Y. M. C. A. is always on the job and the red triangle sure looks good to the boys over here.

Well, I guess with your meatless, wheatless, heatless, lightless and workless days over there, you are sort of getting a little taste of the big struggle going on over here. I see our boys have again distinguished themselves in some way at the front. There are no details, except they are making good.

I often wonder when we will again see the welcoming hand of the Statue of Liberty, or see the glow of her light pointing out the one route we are all wishing and looking for, ward to. France is grand, the homebound ship will be grander but home will be grandest.

AWARD $5 VERDICT TO THE PLAINTIFF

In the Action Brought by Justice of the Peace DeCicco Against the Beardslee's—March Term of Supreme Court Closes.

In supreme court this morning the jury in the case of Michael De Cicco, justice of the peace, of East Kingston against E. C. Beardslee and Hattie M. Beardslee of Delaware county, returned a sealed verdict for the plaintiff for the sum of $5.

The plaintiff claimed that on the afternoon of July 15, 1917, he was riding on the Kingston-Saugerties state road, in an automobile as the guest of John Sisco; and that Earl M. Beardslee, the owner and driver of a car in which the defendants were riding, negligently and carelessly attempted to pass between car in which plaintiff was riding, and a wagon coming from the other direction; and that defendants' car collided with car in which plaintiff was riding; upsetting this car and causing injuries of a permanent nature to the plaintiff.

Andrew J. Cook represented the plaintiff; Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., the defendant.

The suit was brought for $500, and the verdict was for only $5, the plaintiff will have to pay the costs of the action.

There was no other business in court this morning and court adjourned, this case concluding the March term. Justice Rudd was not present today and Christopher K. Leughran, county clerk, received the verdict of the jury.

TO TEST VALIDITY OF DRY PETITION

Order to Show Cause Why Petition Should Not be Declared Null and Void—Order Returnable at Albany Saturday Before Justice Nichols.

Justice Rudd late Thursday afternoon granted the motion made by Frank W. Brooks, attorney for John F. Irwin who conducts a cafe on Hasbrouck avenue, for an order to show cause why certain names should nor be stricken from the petition for a local option election in Kingston April 16, and the petition be declared null and void because of certain alleged defects. This order is returnable Saturday morning at 10 o'clock before Charles E. Nichols, supreme court justice, at his chambers at Albany.

It is alleged that the petition contains nearly two hundred names of persons not qualified signers. Among other irregularities, according to a statement made today by a local man, are the following specific cases. One man signed this petition who is an alien; another signer has not lived in this county for four months; the street address of another signer proved upon investigation to be a vacant lot.

John F. Irwin stated Thursday night that the petition is a "ragged" one, containing two hundred names inadmissible under the law; and that several of the persons credited with signing the petition have denied under oath that they signed.

The fight between the no-license forces and those against the local option election promises to be interesting and exciting.

VERDICT FOR THE PLAINTIFF

Daniel Van Leuven Found Guilty of a Violation of the Agricultural Law in Misbranding and Adulterating Apples Shipped to New York City.

In supreme court Thursday afternoon Justice Rudd directed the jury in the action brought by The People of the State of New York against Daniel Van Leuven of Port Ewen, to award the verdict to the plaintiff.

This was an action brought for an alleged violation of the Agricultural law. The defendant was charged with the misbranding and adulteration of apples shipped by defendant, thus violating Sections 8 and 262 of the law.

On October 12, 1915, according to the complaint, defendant offered or exposed for sale, one closed package of apples marked "New York standard grade A Baldwin, minimum size 2½ inch. These were shipped to New York city.

Edward L. Ma Guire, an inspector in the agricultural department, told how he inspected the apples in question on the steamboat dock in Kingston. Fifty per cent of the apples were wormy and not all the apples were hand picked.

They were not marked as they should have been. The law requires that the grade be indicated, together with words, New York standard, the name of the variety the minimum size of the apples contained therein and the name and address of the packer shall be branded on the package.

Mr. Ma Guire's testimony was corroborated by another inspector from the agriculture department.

The agricultural department was represented by Frederick E. W. Darrow. There was no appearance for the defense.

The penalty for this violation of the agricultural law is $50.

Following is a list of the number of signatures each troop has turned in and the number which each should have reported:

	Signatures	Quota
Troop No. 1..	80	855

The troop staffs have arrived and may be secured from the treasurer for 20 cents each. All members are urged to get them as soon as possible as there may be need for their use soon. All scouts who have not paid their registration fees for the year ending March, 1919, must do so before Saturday if they wish to be enrolled as member of the troop and participate in the next Liberty Loan campaign. The next meeting will be held Tuesday night at which time important plans for the Liberty Loan and parade will be discussed.

AWARD $5 VERDICT TO THE PLAINTIFF

In the Action Brought by Justice of the Peace DeCicco Against the Beardslee's—March Term of Supreme Court Closes.

In supreme court this morning the jury in the case of Michael De Cicco, justice of the peace, of East Kingston against E. C. Beardslee and Hattie M. Beardslee of Delaware county, returned a sealed verdict for the plaintiff for the sum of $5.

The plaintiff claimed that on the afternoon of July 15, 1917, he was riding on the Kingston-Saugerties state road, in an automobile as the guest of John Sisco; and that Earl M. Beardslee, the owner and driver of a car in which the defendants were riding, negligently and carelessly attempted to pass between car in which plaintiff was riding, and a wagon coming from the other direction; and that defendants' car collided with car in which plaintiff was riding; upsetting this car and causing injuries of a permanent nature to the plaintiff.

Andrew J. Cook represented the plaintiff; Judge William D. Brinnier, Jr., the defendant.

The suit was brought for $500, and the verdict was for only $5, the plaintiff will have to pay the costs of the action.

There was no other business in court this morning and court adjourned, this case concluding the March term. Justice Rudd was not present today and Christopher K. Loughran, county clerk, received the verdict of the jury.

TO TEST VALIDITY OF DRY PETITION

Order to Show Cause Why Petition Should Not be Declared Null and Void—Order Returnable at Albany Saturday Before Justice Nichols.

Justice Rudd late Thursday afternoon granted the motion made by Frank W. Brooks, attorney for John F. Irwin who conducts a cafe on Hasbrouck avenue, for an order to show cause why certain names should not be stricken from the petition for a local option election in Kingston April 16, and the petition be declared null and void because of certain alleged defects. This order is returnable Saturday morning at 10 o'clock before Charles E. Nichols, supreme court justice, at his chambers at Albany.

It is alleged that the petition contains nearly two hundred names of persons not qualified signers. Among other irregularities, according to a statement made today by a local man, are the following specific cases. One man signed this petition who is an alien; another signer has not lived in this county for four months; the street address of another signer proved upon investigation to be a vacant lot.

John F. Irwin stated Thursday night that the petition is a "ragged" one, containing two hundred names inadmissible under the law; and that several of the persons credited with signing the petition have denied under oath that they signed.

The fight between the no-license forces and those against the local option election promises to be interesting and exciting.

VERDICT FOR THE PLAINTIFF

Daniel Van Leuven Found Guilty of a Violation of the Agricultural Law in Misbranding and Adulterating Apples Shipped to New York City.

In supreme court Thursday afternoon Justice Rudd directed the jury in the action brought by The People of the State of New York against Daniel Van Leuven of Port Ewen, to award the verdict to the plaintiff.

This was an action brought for an alleged violation of the Agricultural law. The defendant was charged with the misbranding and adulteration of apples shipped by defendant, thus violating Sections 8 and 262 of the law.

On October 12, 1915, according to the complaint, defendant offered or exposed for sale, one closed package of apples marked "New York standard grade A Baldwin, minimum size 2½ inch. These were shipped to New York city.

Edward L. Ma Guire, an inspector in the agricultural department, told how he inspected the apples in question on the steamboat dock in Kingston. Fifty per cent of the apples were wormy and not all the apples were hand picked.

They were not marked as they should have been. The law requires that the grade be indicated, together with words, New York standard, the name of the variety the minimum size of the apples contained therein and the name and address of the packer shall be branded on the package.

Mr. Ma Guire's testimony was corroborated by another inspector from the agriculture department.

The agricultural department was represented by Frederick E. W. Darrow. There was no appearance for the denfense.

The penalty for this violation of the agricultural law is $50.

The funeral will be held from the late residence Monday morning at 9:30 o'clock and at St. Mary's Church at 10 o'clock where a solemn requiem mass will be offered for the repose of his soul. GERMAN VANDALISM ON THE SOMME

Prince Eitel Friedrich, the second son of the Kaiser, was one of the German commanders on the Somme. He was not a great soldier, but he was of the royal house, and so he had to have a command. For many months he lived with his staff in a chateau on the outskirts of Avricourt. And they lived well, for the cellars were well stocked with old wine, and the chateau stood in the midst of a beautiful wooded park. It was far enough from the battle lines to be in no danger save from a wandering aviator, who might, perchance, drop a bomb.

When Prince Eitel Friedrich departed, he had a sufficient quantity of high explosive placed under the chateau he had occupied so long and completely demolished it. The Germans were retreating many miles at this time. It was the epoch of the great German retreat from the Somme in the spring of 1917. The Germans were going so far back that there was no chance of the chateau being of any use to the French armies. It would be far in the rear of the battle zone or the reserve zone. But it might be occupied again by its proper owner and German royalty was so fearful of being thought human that Prince Eitel Friedrich demolished the chateau.

This is one striking example of the way the Germans left the country from which they were obliged to retreat. Another is what remains of the little town of Villers-Carbonnet.

The people who did this frightful thing make up the nation America is fighting in this war. It is to free America from their menace and to free the world from the danger of subjugation by a people whose minds work in such strange and horrid ways that America is at war with Germany. It is a war in which we must be victorious if life is to be bearable on this earth. The war cannot be won unless the people of America back up their government with the money it must have to put a victorious army in the field. Then let every American buy Liberty Bonds and help win the war.

in the same region as the chateau occupied by Prince Eitel Friedrich. Before the retreat began the German soldiers, under the supervision of their officers and by the orders of the High Command, destroyed every habitation in the region they were leaving.

In order not to give notice that the retreat was about to begin, it was only in rare cases that they either burned or blew up a house. The practice was to knock them down with battering rams, or to destroy them after the fashion of a housewrecker clearing the ground of an old structure to make way for a new building.

But the Germans did not preserve the old material, as the housewrecker does. He destroyed it, left it in unrecognizable fragments, so that these poor people returning to their homes might find neither a place to live, neither shelter nor anything from which a shelter might be constructed. Villers-Carbonnet is one of the most splendid examples of their barbarity that they left behind them. But it is only an example of what they did over hundreds of square miles of territory which they were obliged to give back to the French.

LATTINGTOWN.

Lattingtown, March 28.—At the present time the weather is quite cold in this section.

The amount of money given by the pupils of District No. 7 here stated in last items was $5.00 not $500; and the present amount of 30 pupils subscribing to the Junior Red Cross is $7.50, besides the amount given outside of the school will be probably $15. more or less, in all.

The prayer meeting held by the members of the Presbyterian Church, Marlborough, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harcourt one evening last week, was well attended. Mr. Norton of Mt. Zion led and the Rev. Mr. Cotton was also present.

The whooping cough is prevalent in this neighborhood.

During the muddy season an auto got stolled on the road running north and it had to be pulled out by a team of horses.

The Methodists of Marlborough are going to adopt the "daylight saving" government order in their church service by the advice of their minister, the Rev. Mr. Knapp.

The Perpetual Vision.

What lightens labor, sanctifies toil and makes a man good and strong, wise and patient, just and benevolent, both lowly and great, as well as worthy of intelligence and freedom, is the perpetual vision before him of a better world beaming through life's shadows.—Victor Hugo.

LATTINGTOWN.

Lattingtown, March 28.—At the present time the weather is quite cold in this section.

The amount of money given by the pupils of District No. 7 here stated in last items was $5.00 not $500; and the present amount of 30 pupils subscribing to the Junior Red Cross is $7.50, besides the amount given outside of the school will be probably $15, more or less, in all.

The prayer meeting held by the members of the Presbyterian Church, Marlborough, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Harcourt one evening last week, was well attended. Mr. Norton of Mt. Zion led and the Rev. Mr. Cotton was also present.

The whooping cough is prevalent in this neighborhood.

During the muddy season an auto got stolled on the road running north and it had to be pulled out by a team of horses.

The Methodists of Marlborough are going to adopt the "daylight saving" government order in their church service by the advice of their minister, the Rev. Mr. Knapp.

The Perpetual Vision.

What lightens labor, sanctifies toil and makes a man good and strong, wise and patient, just and benevolent, both lowly and great, as well as worthy of intelligence and freedom, is the perpetual vision before him of a better world beaming through life's shadows.—Victor Hugo.
